Q4 2025 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Putnam Investments.

Market commentary

U.S. growth equities posted flat to negative returns (in Canadian dollars) in the fourth quarter of 2025 but ended a third consecutive year of positive double-digit returns. Large-capitalization growth stock returns were slightly negative, lagging their value counterparts and the S&P 500 Index, even as they remained a strong performer for the year overall.

Performance

The Fund's overweight exposure to Eli Lilly and Co. contributed to performance, as did underweight exposure to Oracle Corp. No exposure to The Home Depot Inc. also contributed to performance. Relative overweight exposure to Doximity Inc. and Advanced Micro Devices Inc. detracted from performance, as did underweight exposure to Alphabet Inc.

At a sector level, stock selection in the industrials and financials sectors contributed to the Fund's performance. Stock selection in the information technology and communication services sectors detracted from performance.

Portfolio activity

Fund holdings in Lam Research Corp. and Advanced Micro Devices were added to the Fund, and a holding in AbbVie Inc. was increased. The sub-advisor sold the Fund's holdings in Shopify Inc. and DoorDash Inc. and reduced the Fund's holding in AppLovin Corp.

Outlook

Looking ahead, the sub-advisor believes that there's a lot that could go right for equity markets. There are easing financial conditions globally, the result of synchronized interest rate cuts from central banks. The U.S. banking system has a combination of strong capital ratios and lower-than-average delinquencies. While there is still concern over higher prices, recent inflation trends remain in check, even with the impact of tariffs.

As debate intensifies around the risk of an artificial intelligence (AI) bubble, the sub-advisor is focused on the long-term power of this emerging technology. The sub-advisor expects AI to offer new subsets of potential winners (and losers) and a wide array of new use cases.

Potential challenges for equities include worsening consumer sentiment, a delayed impact from tariffs, valuations and ongoing U.S.-China tensions. The sub-advisor expects to see higher volatility, which may add both risks and investment opportunities.
