Q1 2026 Fund Commentary

Commentary and opinions are provided by Keyridge Asset Management.

Market commentary

The first quarter of 2026 was a turbulent period for markets, marked by a geopolitically driven energy shock, elevated volatility and a rotation away from crowded technology trades. Markets began with optimism based on fourth-quarter 2025 earnings but quickly became volatile following the escalation of conflict in the Middle East, which sent energy prices surging. Canadian and international equities peaked before the conflict broadened in late February, but they finished the quarter with positive returns. The weakness of the U.S. dollar relative to the Canadian dollar meant that U.S. equity returns were negative for Canadian investors.

Performance

The Fund holds an exchange-traded fund for Canadian equity market exposure and uses a systematic call option overlay to generate income. The Fund doesn't hold individual equities, so security-level attribution isn't applicable.

The Fund's call option overlay detracted from performance during the quarter. The Fund sells a portion of its upside equity exposure to generate income from option premiums. Because Canadian equity markets posted positive returns over the quarter, the upside exposure the Fund sold exceeded the premium income generated. The Fund targets 5% annual income from a combination of option premiums and dividends from the underlying equity.

Portfolio activity

Each week, the sub-advisor trades one-month call options systematically on behalf of the Fund. This involves closing expired option contracts and selling new ones to maintain the income generation target. The sub-advisor can also adjust option notional amounts to maintain upside exposure within a target range, managing the balance between premium income and equity participation.

Outlook

There hasn't been a change to the strategic position of the Fund. The Fund continues to target 5% annual income from option premiums and dividends from the underlying equity.
